Editorial

Towards the end of 2012, it is time to review what we have done in the past year and prepare for future challenges. While a self-review may enable the growth of knowledge, learning from others' past experiences certainly offers greater benefits.

Ms. Cecilia Choi, Pharmacy Manager of the St. Paul Hospital, has shared with us her practicing experiences, together with her mission of the profession in the December Issue. Her sharing surely provides valuable insight into the future development of the profession, and helps adapting ourselves to the new era.

Not only our profession is constantly developing, the management of many cardiovascular diseases has also entered a new stage after the emergences of new anti-platelets. To get everyone updated with the ever-changing practice, Vincent has summarized the most updated evidences, together with the individual properties of 3 "newer" anti-platelets: clopidogrel, prasugrel and ticagrelor. Those who are interested in the topic cannot afford missing it!

"Have you ever heard of Lucifer Effect?"

Never mind if you have no idea. Most of us probably have not ever heard of it unless you are interested in psychology. In this Issue, our guest writer has shared with us a short yet very inspirational story on this topic. The story will not only give you a brief idea on this famous psychological concept but also invite reflection to our daily practice.

Last but not least, we have some updated pharmacy news by Ellen and a press release by the President on the private chemotherapy admixing issue. Enjoy!

Errol WONG is a Resident Pharmacist working at the Caritas Medical Centre
